DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ikai et al (5,700,400).

Ikai et al teach a process of forming a semiconductor material (film) by subjecting a hydrosilane monomer such as n-hexalinane or n-heptasilane etc. and such compound satisfy the at least one compound as of the instant claim 2 (see the list in col.3, lines 41-col.4) to dehydrogenative condensation followed by thermal treatment and the process is conducted in presence of catalyst comprises cobalt complex such as bis (cyclopentadienyl) cobalt (also see the list in col.10, lines 59-col.11, lines 14).

Ikai et al also teach that the semiconductor is formed with maximum efficiency and a minimum cost (col.1, lines 29-34) and starting with the mixture of the monomers of hydrosilane as hydromonosilane or hydrodisilane (col.2, lines 64-67) and the cobalt containing catalyst (col.8, lines 41-53).

As to claim 5, the produced or formed semiconductor material comprises silicon and cobalt (col.2, lines 36-38).

3. Claims 1 and 4-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nakayama et al (JP-53-60171).

Nakayama et al teach a process of forming an electrode for a silicon substrate, wherein the electrode comprises cobalt silicate and formed a paste of an organic binder and cobalt silicate on the silicon substrate by screen printing and heat treated or calcining the printed paste to form the electrode (see the detailed description of the invention at page 2 of the translated version).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Jeng et al (6,251,777).

Jeng et al teach a silicon-cobalt silicide film formed on a substrate (col.1, lines 58-65). In the event any differences can be shown for the product of the product-by-process claim 5, as opposed to the product taught by Jeng et al, such differences would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art as a routine modification of the product in the absence of a showing of unexpected results; see also In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964 (Fed. Cir.1985).
